Citizens encouraged to plan their route to school amid First Street construction

With the start of school quickly approaching, it is important to keep in mind that there is heavy construction on First Street in the area of Klug Avenue to Madison Avenue. Due to high amounts of traffic with school starting, this can cause many issues including traffic jams and safety concerns. In order to maintain a steady flow of traffic, and ensure the safety of citizens, it is encouraged that you plan your route accordingly, leaving enough time and consideration for others.

As long as the weather permits, all four lanes of First Street should be reopening within three weeks.
