"Christmas cookies at the library"

What better place to find fantastic recipes for the holidays than at the library? To promote the hundreds of recipe books on the Norfolk Public Library shelves, reference assistants Amy Fuxa and Lisa Peters hosted a Christmas cookie exchange this week.

"We have a really good variety of cookbooks that range in topics from barbecue, gluten-free, and desserts to ethnic dishes, jerky and crockpot recipes. We encourage people to check out a cookbook and browse through all the delicious recipes at the Norfolk Public Library," Peters said.
